

Ascend Berkeley Alumni Spotlight #1

Lisa Wang

Graduating: May 2015

Major: Economics

Internship: EY Assurance

Favorite Moment: Fall 2013

From directing to filming, it was awesome seeing my committee members taking ownership of their own projects. It was one of those proud momma moments at the end of the semester where I saw how much they have grown during their time in Ascend. Plus, the late night editing session resulted in great laughs and bonding, so it was a great way to wrap up the semester together.

Interests: Dance & Graphic Design

Since freshman year and this semester I am part of Movement and Abba Modern. If any of you guys are curious, interested, or love dancing as well, feel free to talk to me about how to get involved! No experience necessary and lots of fun guaranteed! (Shamless plug)

In addition to dance, I also really like graphic design. I am a graphic designer for the residential programs and have made a number of those flyers that you get attacked with while walking down Sproul.

Words of Advice: Make Friends & Invest in Ascend

There'll definitely be moments where you feel stressed and stretched to your limits in Ascend, but I guarantee that if you pull through and invest 100% of yourself into this organization you will come out of it a much more confident and prepared individual. Additionally, one of Ascend's greatest assets is the people, so don't go through the semester thinking that if you just go to your own events or work hard on your own part that you will get the full experience. Some of my bestest friends and mentors in college came from this organization and they are a huge part of how I got to where I am today.

So I encourage you all to hangout and get to know everyone from the execs to the cms and be inspired and motivated by the amazing talent of the people around you. Don't be intimidated just because someone is El Presidente! I assure you that as serious and intimidating as she might seem, she's actually just a little girl who would like to be your friend.
